

Selling your most important asset is a decision you don't make lightly. And effective marketing of your property is key to achieving a successful sale.

Brett Mead Photography provides an important part of your marketing, as images of your property are from which people make their first impression, helping prospective buyers decide whether to pursue an interest or simply pass it by.

Images supplied by Brett Mead Photography are yours to do with what you like. Whether you decide to change agents, or list the property yourself online, you can use the quality images supplied in high and low resolution for whatever your needs.

Gisborne's House of the Year photographer for 2007 and 2008, Brett Mead is experienced in photographing properties while highlighting the unique attributes of each. With an eye for detail and working closely with you, Brett will produce a wide range of imagery, allowing you to decide which images are used for marketing.
